

C. G. Jung Society NEWSLETTER

Autumn 1985

LIBRARY NEWS

The library will be available for members at all Monday meetings held at the North Area YWCA. In addition, it will be open on Monday, September 30, 7:30-9:00 p.m., during which time tapes from John Beebe's May lecture, "A New Look at Psychological Types," will be played, and on Monday, November 18, 7:30-9:00 p.m., when Jean Shinoda Bolen's "The Goddesses in Everywoman" tapes will be played.

At Murray Stein's September 16 lecture, his book, Jung's Treatment of Christianity: The Psychotherapy of a Religious Tradition, will be available for purchase, and on September 26 Jean Bolen's The Goddesses in Everywoman will be available in paperback.

NEW ACQUISITIONS:

--Murray Stein's Jung's Treatment of Christianity, an innovative study of Jung's writings on the trinity, the mass, alchemy, the Bible, and various biblical figures. The author describes how Jung took modern Christianity under his psychotherapeutic care in an effort to help it evolve to its next stage of development.

--Ann Belford Ulanov's The Feminine in Jungian Psychology and Christian Theology is good background reading for the Rev. Laura Cameron Fraser's October 19 workshop. The author's purpose is to gather together in one volume what Jung and Jungians have discovered about the feminine and to explore their approach in order to see the place of the feminine in Christian theology, and to make connections between theology and depth psychology.

--Samuel's Jung and the Post-Jungians

--James Hillman's The Myth of Analysis

CALENDAR

Monday
September 16
7:30 p.m.

Murray Stein: JUNG'S TREATMENT OF CHRISTIANITY

An investigation of C. G. Jung's preoccupation with western culture and religion during his last creative period (1938-1955), focusing on the psychology of Christianity.

Kane Hall, University of Washington campus.

$7.00 general admission; $5.00 for members, students, and seniors.

Murray Stein, Ph.D., is a Jungian analyst, president of the C. G. Jung Institute of Chicago and president of the Chicago Society of Jungian Analysts. He is author of Jung's Treatment of Christianity: The Psychotherapy of a Religious Tradition and In Midlife, editor of Jungian Analysis and co-editor of Chiron: A Review of Jungian Analysis.

Thursday
September 26
7:30 p.m.

Jean Shinoda Bolen: THE GODDESSES IN EVERYWOMAN

An introduction to seven Greek goddesses--Artemis, Athena, Hestia, Hera, Demeter, Persephone, and Aphrodite--as personifications of archetypal patterns of being and behaving in women that are, in turn, rewarded, repressed, or punished by the culture. A new perspective on women's psychology that shows how women are acted upon both by inner "goddesses" and outer stereotypes.

Kane Hall, University of Washington campus.

$7.00 general admission; $5.00 for members, students, and seniors.

Jean Shinoda Bolen, M.D., Jungian analyst and clinical professor of psychiatry, University of California, San Francisco, and author of The Tao of Psychology: Synchronicity and the Self and The Goddesses in Everywoman.

Monday
September 30
7:30-9:00 p.m.

The library will be open at the North Area YWCA, 13305 First Avenue N.E., Seattle. Tapes from John Beebe's May lecture, "A New Look at Psychological Types," will be played.

Monday
September 30
7:30 p.m.
and Tuesday
October 1
7:30 p.m.

CENTERPOINT INTRODUCTORY MEETING

Centerpoint is a personal study program for those who find the psychology of C. G. Jung compatible with their thinking and want to join with a small group to pursue their own inner journeys. The groups meet every week or so and listen to and discuss one of 18 tapes sessions, hoping to find their own relation to Jungian understandings, fairy tales, myths, and dreams. Each course costs $50.00. Bring your questions and enthusiasm to either of the two organizational meetings at the North Area YWCA.

Monday
October 21
7:30 p.m.

Thomas G. Pautler: JUNGIAN THEORY AND TRADITIONAL MEDICINE

Jung's theories are holistic by nature. In this regard, his concepts offer guideposts to a fragmented medical world. The presentation will explore the archetype as a psychosomatic entity, the image of the wounded healer, and disease as shadow.

North Area YWCA, 13305 First Avenue N.E., Seattle.

$3.00 general admission; free to members.

Thomas G. Pautler, M.D., is a physician in family medical practice in Seattle, with undergraduate degree from Gonzaga University and a graduate of the Creighton School of Medicine.

3:00 p.m.

Laura Cameron Fraser: A PRIEST RESPONDS TO JUNG'S TREATMENT OF CHRISTIANITY

Has the church accomplished any of the developmental tasks Jung announced? How does the Christian church help or hinder the development of consciousness for modern people? Part of the church continues to mouth its ancient mysteries with no grasp of--and, thus, no participation of the heart in--the profundities of which it is guardian. Part of the church is estranged from its roots, seeking nourishment elsewhere, while some--especially those remembering Jung's warning regarding the hazards in seeking a spiritual path foreign to one's own psychic history--have stayed with, or returned to, the church, pressing her to feed her children.

Burke Room, Burke Museum, University of Washington campus.

$25.00 general admission; $20.00 for members. Advance registration is
