Masculine and Feminine: Inner and Outer Aspects

This lecture/workshop series presented by distinguished Jungian analysts arises naturally out of two concerns...

First, because people everywhere have a fascination about the differences in the psychology of men and women. Today especially there is a great deal of lively debate about what is masculine behavior, what is feminine behavior, and (in analytical psychology) what are the characteristics of male and female principles.

Second, since Carl Jung's pioneering efforts in describing the psychology of men and of women, other analytical psychologists have begun to make very important contributions in this area. There is much interest in integrating some of this newer material.

The speakers will consider: the influence of archetypal elements, those in-born, 'a-priori', organizing components of the psyche, in guiding the development of men and women; the inner woman (anima) in men, the inner male (animus) in women; the influence of these elements in heterosexual and homosexual relationships; and finally the reciprocal influence of these elements in the individual and in the culture in which the individual lives.

All lectures will be held Friday evenings at Kane Hall, University of Washington campus. Unless otherwise noted, the workshops will be held on Saturdays at the Burke Museum, also on the U.W. campus.

Presented by: John Beebe, M. D.

Lecture: Anima: The Inner Feminine in Man

September 11, 1987 7:30 PM Kane Hall Room 120

$5.00 for members, students, seniors / $7.00 non-members 1.5 CMEI credits applied for

The Anima has been described by Jung as an archetype, as a mood, as a figure and as a problem. How can we connect the feminine personality of the unconscious to our lives? What is the best way to understand Jung's unique contribution to male psychology? What is the relevance of the Anima to female psychology?

Workshop: The Anima in Images, Dreams, Art and Films

September 12, 1987 9:30 AM — 4:00 PM Kane Hall, room 120

$40.00 members $50.00 non-members 4.5 CCMEI credits applied for

This seminar will explore the anima as she appears in the lives, dreams, and works of art of individuating people. The effect will be to let this personality of the psyche tell us what she is about.

The film Vertigo, directed by Alfred Hitchcock, will be the focal point of the workshop and will be shown preceding the workshop as a basis for discussion.

Dr. Beebe maintains a private practice of Jungian analysis in San Francisco where he is a member of the C. G. Jung Institute, and is Editor of its quarterly of in-depth reviews, The San Francisco Jung Institute Library Journal. He is a graduate of Harvard and the University of Chicago Medical School and did his psychiatric residency at Stanford. He is the author of Psychiatric Treatment: Crises, Clinic and Consultation and numerous publications related to analytical psychology. He is well known for his excellent treatment of films.

Lecture: The Individuation of Homosexuality

October 30, 1987 7:30 PM Kane Hall Room 120

$5.00 for members, students, seniors / $7.00 non-members 1.5 CMEI credits applied for

In this lecture, Dr. John Beebe will discuss how the individual deals with the highly energy-charged content of homosexual object preference. How can this socially stigmatized direction of libido with so much collective attention be made individual; be made respectful of the individual's drive to self-actualization? What differences, if any, appear in the psyche of individuating homosexual people as distinct from those of individuating heterosexual people?

Workshop: The Individuation of Homosexuality: A Workshop

October 31, 1987 10:00 AM — 4:00 PM Burke Room, Burke Museum

$40.00 members $50.00 non-members 4.5 CMEI credits applied for advanced enrollment recommended

During this all-day workshop, Dr. Beebe will work with participants toward a more differentiated attitude toward the homoerotic, to understand better its place within the development of individuals at this time in our culture. There will be space to explore individual solutions to the universal problem of living with homosexual feelings and images.

Presented by: Authur D. Colman, M.D.

Lecture: Earth Fathers — A Bridge to Creative Male/Female Connections

December 4, 1987 7:30 PM Kane Hall Room 120

$5.00 for members, students, seniors / $7.00 non-members 1.5 CMEI credits applied for

The traditional marriage of Sky Father and Earth Mother has given way to expanded potential and confused experience for men and women in their rapidly changing roles as lovers, parents, and workers. The once obscure and forbidding archetype of the Earth Father may provide a bridge to less polarized and more creative male/female inner and outer connections. Dr. Colman will present images of the Earth Father from the ancient and modern world and discuss the rewards, risks and resistance to the emergence of this figure.

Workshop: Hero, Father, and Wise Old Man

December 5, 1987 10:00 AM — 4:00 PM Burke Room, Burke Museum

$40.00 members $50.00 non-members 4.5 CMEI credits applied for advanced enrollment recommended

Male experience enfolds as biology, psyche and the search for meaningful interaction at each stage of the life cycle. The archetypes of Hero, Father, and Wise Old Man are some of the most important organizing principals of that enfolding. This workshop will continue an exploration of the psychology of the masculine by tracing the interweaving of these archetypes through myth, case history, and the ideas and personal experience of workshop participants.

Dr. Colman is a Jungian analyst, author, lecturer, and clinical professor of psychiatry at the University of California Medical Center. He was a leading figure in the development and design of alternative birth centers and is co-author of two books; Pregnancy: the Psychological Experience; and Earth Father, Sky Father, which are ground breaking works on the psychology of parenting. In addition to private practice, Dr. Colman is president of the A.K. Rice Institute, an organization devoted to the study of the unconscious in group life.

Centerpoint Introduction to I, Invitation to II:

On Tuesday, September 29, 7:30 PM at Cornish-North, Bunny Brown will present an introduction to Centerpoint I.

Centerpoint is a personal study program for those who find the psychology of C.G. Jung compatible with their own thinking and want to join with a small group to pursue their own inner journey. Participants hope to find their own relations to Jungian understanding, fairy tales, myths and dreams. The groups meet every week or so (at the group's choice), and listen to and discuss one of 18 taped sessions. The self-paced course can take as little as 18 weeks, or as long as nine months. Each person keeps a journal of dreams and other reflections during the course of the program. However, this is NOT a dream therapy group. The course costs $60; a notebook of transcripts and study materials is provided. Bring your questions and enthusiasm to this organizational meeting. Contact Bunny at 632-4892 for further information.

Recollections: Withdrawing past errors

In the last newsletter (Spring 1987), we printed a member essay written by Paco Mitchell. There was an error in the last line of the essay. The very last line (bottom of page 5) read "but also of the transpersonal deficiencies, potentials, and longings of the ego". The last word should have read age, as in "but also of the transpersonal deficiencies, potentials, and longings of the age". (Emphasis added). Our apologies for the error.

Events Sponsored by the Education Committee

The Education Committee presents a program each year. The seminars are kept small so as to facilitate informal discussion, and permit an open dialogue. Unless otherwise noted, events are held at the Cornish North facilities on Monday nights at 7:30 PM. Events are open to the general public, and cost $3.00.

Presented by: William Levy, M.D.

Lecture: Archetypes of Infertility

September 28, 1987 7:30 PM Cornish North

"Sarah was barren. She had no child." (Genesis, Chapter 11) Experts estimate ten million Americans experience fertility problems at any given time. Images from art, literature and mythology show the compelling nature of the archetype of fertility. The opposite of the image is the devastating experience of impaired fertility, as shown in the emotional impact of the word "infertile".

Marla Herbig is a psychotherapist with a Jungian perspective in private practice in Seattle. She is on the board of Resolve of Puget Sound, a support organization for people who are experiencing impaired fertility.

Presented by: Paco Mitchell, M.A.

Lecture: Shapes of Fate

October 5, 1987 7:30 PM Cornish North

$3.00 non-members

"I can no longer make any great distinction between artistic process, Jungian depth psychology and the religious quest. To speak of these as 'Art', 'Psychology', and 'Religion' is to obscure the fact that they ultimately derive from the same psychic realm and share root concerns." A sculptor in bronze, Paco will show examples of his work and discuss the relationship between creative work, therapeutic concerns and Jung's psychology of individuation.

Paco Mitchell is a Jungian therapist in private practice in Port Townsend. He also maintains an art studio where he casts bronze sculptures by the ancient lost-wax casting process. He is especially interested in the creative challenge inherent in soul-work.

University Unitarian Church 6556 35th NE Seattle

$45.00 non-members, $40.00 members and all who pre-register

The purpose of this conference is to provide a forum for people who work with children and wish to deepen their understanding of and identification with Jungian approaches to the child's psyche. Interested participants would include therapists, teachers and parents. The purpose of the conference is not to teach people how to do Jungian therapy with children, but rather to provide a time and place for people to share their interests and support their concerns. The meeting's atmosphere will be one of a meeting among equals. All of the speakers are from the Pacific Northwest community. The format will be a series of 20 minute lectures interspersed with group discussions. A presentation by Edith Sullwold will follow some time in early 1988.

Myths and fairytales give expression to unconscious processes, and their telling causes these processes to come alive again and to be recollected, thereby re-establishing the connection between conscious and unconscious". (C. G. Jung, Collected Works, V 9 ii, para. 280).

A Jungian therapist working with adults, teens and children, Elizabeth has told tales for many Jungian groups including the C. G. Jung Institute in Küsnacht, Switzerland.

Presented by: Linda Shepherd, Ph.D.

Lecture: The Tarot: A Source of Psychological and Spiritual Wisdom

November 16, 1987 7:30 PM Cornish North

$3.00 non-members

Jung recognized that the Tarot had its origins in profound patterns of the collective unconscious, and represents one of the non-rational bridges across the apparent divide between the unconscious and consciousness. Thus the Tarot can act as a resource for renewing and enlarging consciousness.

In this lecture we will explore viewing the Tarot as a set of symbols and archetypes of experience; as a description of the process of individuation or the spiritual journey; as a symbolic system of objective knowledge; and as a divinitory tool. The speaker will share some personal experiences with the Tarot and discuss some practical aspects of how the cards can be used.

Linda Shepherd holds a Ph.D. in biochemistry and has worked in health care research and development for ten years. Over the past three years the Tarot has become an important resource in her own inner work.
